

Although a Board of Immigration Appeals decision is considered final, in addition to the possibility of reopening, certain immigration matters may be properly presented to the Federal District Court or United States Court of Appeals. Our office has extensive experience and success in sophisticated appellate advocacy.